Relax in cafes and tea shops

There are many cozy cafes and coffee shops in the district that offer unique and carefully selected menus. Here are four categories of shops: traditional Japanese-style coffee shops, old folk house cafes, organic cafes, and Japanese-style cafes.

traditional Japanese-style coffee shop

Cafe Rouault

A traditional Japanese-style cafe beloved by the local community in a student town

Founded in 1952. This cafe was originally called "Roault Gallery Cafe" and offered art exhibitions. The current owner, Yamashita san, took over the cafe and moved it to its current location. The furniture, including tables and chairs, is still in use from the previous location. The cafe is popular for its Vienna coffee and its signature "Ceylon-style curry," which was inherited from the previous owner.

Old Folk House Café

Amane Saryo

A cozy place where you can enjoy a delicious menu and spend fulfilling time, even as the rain falls

Located in a quiet alley between Sendagi and Nezu, this Japanese cafe is housed in a renovated traditional Japanese folk house. The first and second floors have different atmospheres, and the second floor is like a cozy attic room. In addition to the "Rain Sound Gohan," a daily changing dish, you can also enjoy Japanese and Western sweets and drinks.

A relaxing Japanese place to feel the seasons

KNETEN is a German word that means "to knead." As the name suggests, you can enjoy sweets, bread, and meals carefully made from the kneading process to baking. Ingredients are carefully selected, including organic, sustainably grown, and domestically produced items. It is not only about fulfilling your stomach, but it also delights your body, and will surely soothe you.

Located near Yushima Tenmangu Shrine, this Japanese cafe offers a Japanese moment with a modern touch, while cherishing the tradition of tea ceremony and the spirit of hospitality. The menu offers a variety of foods such as anmitsu, specially selected matcha, and set meals. The "Seasonal Fresh Fruit Anmitsu" with chewy agar jelly, large-grain bean paste, and premium black sugar is a truly exquisite taste.

▲ Bunkyo City Higo-Hosokawa Garden

In spring, plum blossoms; in summer, irises; in autumn, autumn leaves... The garden associated with the Hosokawa clans

A park that was built on the site of the garden of the Hosokawa family, lords of the former Kumamoto domain. It is a strolling pond garden with a rich natural landscape that makes use of the undulating terrain of the Sekiguchi Daichi. The "Shoseikaku?" built in the park was once used as a school by the Hosokawa family. It was renovated in 2016.

In autumn, Yukitsuri (umbrella-like ropes for snow) are hung on pine trees for viewing, and a fall foliage light-up event called "Higo Akari" is held (The illumination is scheduled to be held for a limited time in autumn.).

Enjoy the Daimyo gardens

A weeping cherry tree that is about 80 years old. It blooms in late March, and it is illuminated during the flowering season.

The Daimyo Garden was built in the Edo period. The charm of the Daimyo Garden is that you can enjoy the seasonal beauty of the garden while walking around. In particular, The Koishikawa area was once home to many daimyo residences, and many of these historic gardens still remain today. Many of these gardens still remain today.

▲ Rikugien Gardens

A beautiful "waka garden" that reflects the scenery in classical Japanese poetry.

The garden was built by Yoshiyasu Yanagisawa, a lord chamberlain of The fifth shogun Tsunayoshi Tokugawa, over a period of seven years. It features 88 famous places that were mentioned in the Manyoshu and Kokinshu poetry collections. While stone pillars were once built as landmarks for each scenic spot, only 32 remain today.

Introduction of the "SENTO Building," which carries on the legacy of the public bathhouse!

The old and closed public bathhouse "Miyano-yu" has been revived in 2020 as a complex that houses cafes and general stores. The building, designed while preserving the "bathhouse-like" atmosphere, retains the bathhouse's iconic chimney, ensuring it blends seamlessly with the town.

MATCHA&ESPRESSO MIYANO-YU

A lot of remnants of the past, such as the chimney used at that time, the getabako (shoe boxes), and the tile pictures from the bath, are still preserved.

A cafe located on the first floor of a building that once housed a public bathhouse called "Miyano-yu". The interior still retains traces of the former bathhouse. The coffee served is roasted in-house using specialty coffee beans. Authentic matcha drinks made with organically grown matcha are also popular.

Famous Confections Associated with Literary Figures of Bunkyo City

Local confectioners in Bunkyo City have created special sweets inspired by the literati associated with the area. Enjoy unique flavors you can only find here while strolling through the neighborhood. They also make perfect souvenirs for your trip.

¥240 per piece

Hongo Miharado Matchazuke

Milk-flavored sweet bean paste is shaped to resemble white rice and wrapped in tea-infused dough, evoking the image of "manju chazuke," said to have been enjoyed by Ogai Mori. With each bite, the sweet bean paste and matcha melt together in perfect harmony, creating a delicate flavor that pairs beautifully with tea.

What is "Buntaro"?

The Bunkyo Tourism Association's mascot, who "knows Bunkyo fairly well," is always buzzing around to promote the charms of Bunkyo City!

'Shin-zaka' in front of Nezu Shrine. As Ogai Mori described in his work 'Seinen' that the slope has an 'S' shape.

Harima-zaka with its cherry tree-lined street

It is a popular spot for cherry blossoms in spring.

It was developed as part of the Circular Road 3 after the post-war urban redevelopment, named after the upper residences of Matsudaira Harima that once stood here. In 1960 (Showa 35), local residents planted about 120 cherry trees, which have now grown into a splendid cherry tree-lined street.

Haunted staircase in Bunkyo City

40 steps to climb

Downward is 39 steps?

It is a rare spot in the ward where counting the steps can be scary!

Known for having a different number of steps going up than coming down. It used to be a dark path, but after widening construction, handrails were installed, and it became brighter. Nevertheless, the staircase still bends midway, making it difficult to see ahead, and some parts of the staircase lead to dead ends, contributing to its unique mysterious atmosphere.

Slopes in Bunkyo City

Following "animal names" for slope touring!?

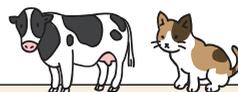

Slope names come from various origins, such as the names of samurai residences and temples that serve as landmarks, the landscape of the slopes, and the surrounding environment. Researching the origins of slope names reveals the regional characteristics and history, as well as the lives of the people who lived there. Among them, there are slopes named after animals, which also seem to have their origins and stories.

Categorizing slopes by theme and touring them might be one of the unique pleasures of Bunkyo City.

Tokyo University Akamon Gate
Ikutokuen
Shinji-ike Pond
(Sanshiro-ike)

"Akamon," known by its nickname, is a nationally designated important cultural property

"Akamon" was built according to the customs of the time when Maeda Nariyasu, the lord of the Kaga Domain, welcomed Princess Yohime, the daughter of Tokugawa Iemitsu, as his lawful wife. "Sanshiro Pond" refers to the "Heart-Shaped Pond" within the garden created during the visit of shogun Tokugawa Iemitsu, and it became the setting for Natsume Soseki's masterpiece, "Sanshiro."

The Akamon Gate is undergoing seismic reinforcement work until September 30, 2027 (scheduled).

03 Ushi-Tenjin-Kitano-Jinja-Shrine

There is also the "Nadeushi (Stone)" which is said to realize your wishes.

A rock said to resemble an ox once sat upon by Minamoto no Yoritomo is enshrined here and is believed to be the origin of the "Nade-iwa" (stroking stone) tradition.

This shrine enshrines Sugawara no Michizane. It is said that when Minamoto no Yoritomo rested at this place, Michizane, riding on a cow, appeared in his dream and foretold, "Two fortunes will come to you." In gratitude for the birth of Yoriei and victory in battle as foretold, a shrine was built.

*The required time for the route is just an estimate.

A historic temple that conveys the atmosphere of Edo to this day.

The main hall, Kannon-do Hall, was built under the orders of the shogun and is a large building that combines the essence of architectural craftsmanship. Its grandeur is considered to be the best in Tokyo.

02 Hatoyama Kaikan (Hatoyama Hall)

A valuable stained glass used by the artist Sanchi Ogawa.

It is a Western-style building built by the former Prime Minister, Ichiro Hatoyama. It was designed by architect Shinichiro Okada and is an English-style building with beautiful stained glass by Ogawa Sanchi. In addition to the exhibition of the commemorative items and treasures of the Hatoyama family, there is also a garden colored by roses.

03 St. Mary's Cathedral, Tokyo

A church with a unique shape and no pillars inside.

The stainless steel exterior and column-free interior create a unique structure.

The origins of this site date back to 1887, when a chapel was established as part of the Saint Mary French Language School. It later became Sekiguchi Church, where a wooden Gothic-style church was built, but it was destroyed by wartime fires. The current cathedral was completed in 1964 and designed by renowned architect Kenzo Tange.
