33 Koishikawa Korakuen Gardens

The oldest daimyo's garden in Tokyo, filled with the atmosphere of untrodden hidden nature.

The stroll garden with artificial hills and a pond was built in 1629 in the Tokyo residence of the Miho-Tokugawa family. The undulating landscape of the Koishikawa garden is used to express "hills, mountains, rivers and countryside". The garden grounds, centered on Dai-sen (the "Grand Pond"), incorporate landscapes which are modelled on famous scenic spots in Japan and China. The beauty of the garden is also enhanced with seasonal attractions from plum blossoms in early spring to the coloring of leaves in autumn. Every time you walk in the garden, you can enjoy various magnificent scenes. Nationally Designated Special Historic Site and Special Place of Scenic Beauty.
